“Come & Visit
Pakefield in Suffolk”

Nestling on the clifftops just south of Lowestoft, overlooking windswept sand and pebble beaches, Pakefield is one of the real jewels of the East coast, and thanks to its variety of camping, holiday park and hotel options, is a great place to stay, whatever your tastes.

The history of Pakefield goes back over 700,000 years, making this quiet, unassuming village one of the oldest settlements in Britain.

One walk along the beach is all it takes to see why our neolithic ancestors chose this beautiful spot, while the modern facilities, which include public tennis courts and parks, make it ideal for a family getaway.

Pakefield's convenient location makes it an ideal base for exploring East Anglia's breathtaking landscapes and attractions. Lowestoft is within easy walking distance, and the birdwatchers' paradise of Kessingland is only a few miles south along the beach.

Pakefield is perfect for those who enjoy a relaxed pace of life, and its array of clifftop pubs and restaurants cater to all tastes and serve some incredible locally-brewed real ales. Thanks to its secluded position and great value holiday parks, Pakefield is ideal for family holidays, so if you and your family are in need of a good old-fashioned British summer holiday, why choose anywhere else?
